

PHASE CHANGE ACCESS DEVICE FOR MEMORIES

Abstract of the Disclosure

A memory may have access devices formed using a chalcogenide material. The access device does not induce a snapback voltage sufficient to cause read disturbs in the associated memory element being accessed. In the case of phase change memory elements, the snapback voltage may be less than the threshold voltage of the phase change memory element.